12 Sept. 1844 When Cowlitz was on its way to Sitka, at Cape Flattery, Harrier was sent on board the Cadboro to proceed to Vancouver after Captain McNeill “broke the after storeroom out which had been in his charge, found five boxes of raisins emptied by rats and a quantity of new Tin ware greatly damaged also a quantity of new knives and forks under his immediate eye in the pantry” (C.1/259 fo. 119d)

12 Sept. 1844 Letter W.H. McNeill to Capt. Scarborough:
“Have the kindness to receive on board your vessel to be landed at Fort Vancouver Jno Harrier I wish you to say to him that if he goes to work on board the Cadboro and gives you satisfaction his wages will go on if not he will receive no pay during the time he remains idle. I shall write C.F. McLoughlin concerning him” (C.1/221 fo. 81d)
